ABOUT

GIMPA FACULTY OF LAW

The GIMPA Faculty of Law is the ideal setting for the pursuit of legal scholarship and training of would-be lawyers, legal academics and policymakers.

Since its establishment in 2010, GIMPA Law has quickly emerged as a preeminent centre of learning, emerging among the Ghanaian Law Faculties as the Faculty of choice.

Our rigorous standards and tested pedagogies prepare our students for an increasingly competitive legal educational environment and a complex legal marketplace. The carefully crafted atmosphere within the school presents a congenial environment for students to fully achieve their potential and advance nascent talents in the law. With our deep-rooted belief in the efficacy of practical lawyering, GIMPA Law provides clinical legal education, including student participation in law clinics, moot courts and practical courses of study from first year of enrolment through to graduation.

ABOUT

GIMPA LAW CONFERENCES

The Faculty of Law at GIMPA is pleased to host the 2023 GIMPA Law Conference on the theme: The 1992 Constitution @ 30: Taking Stock, Assessing Progress and Reflecting on the Future, from Tuesday 14th to Thursday 16th March 2023. The GIMPA Law Conference Series (www.gimpalawconferences.org), a biennial event, was introduced in 2016 to provide a collegial platform for the discussion of topical national and international issues, and propose solutions. The maiden edition in 2016 was organized by the GIMPA Faculty of Law in collaboration with the Leitner Center for International Law and Justice at the Fordham University School of Law in New York, United States of America, and with the support of the Embassy of The Kingdom of The Netherlands in Accra.

The two-day conference was on the theme – The International Criminal Court and Africa: A Discussion on Legitimacy, Impunity, Selectivity, Fairness and Accountability in Accra, Ghana. The aim of the Conference was to discuss the frosty relationship between the International Criminal Court (ICC) and Africa in an open and frank manner and explore how to strengthen or sever the relationship once and for all. The Conference attracted academics, civil society organizations, policy makers et al. from all over the African continent and beyond. The two-day Conference explored various themes regarding the relationship between the ICC and Africa. The then Prosecutor of the ICC, Her Excellency Madam Fatou Bensouda of The Gambia, was the Special Guest of Honour, given the fact that the Conference focused on perceptions facing the Court on the African continent.

Building upon the success of the Conference, the GIMPA Faculty of Law decided to propose the establishment of a Research Center that focused on International Criminal Law and Justice. Thus, in May 2017, the African Center of International Criminal Justice (ACICJ) (www.acicj.org) was established at the GIMPA Faculty of Law, with the support of the Embassy of The Kingdom of The Netherlands in Accra, Ghana. The ACICJ is thus dedicated to growing the body of knowledge on international criminal justice, its necessity, and the place of Africa within that paradigm. The center operates from the GIMPA Faculty of Law.

In 2018, the second edition of the GIMPA Law Conference Series was organized by the GIMPA Faculty of Law in collaboration with the Judicial Service of Ghana, the Leitner Center for International Law and Justice at the Fordham University School of Law in New York, United States of America, and with the support of White & Case LLP, New York, United States of America. The theme of the Conference was: The Judiciary and its contribution to Ghana after 60: Reflecting on the past, analyzing the present, preparing for the future. The Conference was attended by all the stakeholders in the justice delivery system, including Superior Court Justices, the leadership and members of the Ghana Bar Association, the leadership of Parliament, faculty of the various Law Faculties, Civil Society Organizations and the public at large. The Chief Justice of Ghana at the time, Her Ladyship Justice Sophia Akuffo delivered the keynote address and participated in most of the sessions during the two-day period.

In 2020, due to the outbreak of COVID-19, the 2020 edition of the GIMPA Law Conference was held online via ZOOM by the GIMPA Faculty of Law, in partnership with the Bank of Ghana and the Securities and Exchange Commission. The theme for the virtual Conference was: The Banking and Financial Sector Crisis in Ghana: Towards Sustainable Reform. This highly successful, first of its kind law conference in Ghana was also broadcast live on radio and across various social media platforms. The Governor of the Bank of Ghana, Dr. Ernest Addison and the Director-General of the Securities and Exchange Commission, Reverend Daniel Ogbarmey Tetteh, were the Keynote Speaker and Guest Speaker respectively.

BACKGROUND AND OBJECTIVES OF THE 2023 GIMPA LAW CONFERENCE

On 31st December 1981, the Provisional National Defence Council (PNDC) overthrew the government of the Third Republic and abrogated the 1979 Third Republican Constitution of Ghana, and subsequently ruled the country for the next eleven (11) years. The making of the 1992 Constitution therefore traces its roots to the PNDC era, and the local government reforms it introduced. The economic reform agenda of the PNDC regime was highly dependent on donor support from the Bretton Woods institutions i.e. the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund. The quid pro quo for this support was the democratization of the upper echelons of the government. Thus, the PNDC tasked the National Commission on Democracy (NCD) to embark on a nationwide tour, consulting the people on the democratic reforms that should take place. The NCD after completing this work, produced and presented to the PNDC a report entitled “Evolving a True Democracy”. The most important finding in this report was that the people of Ghana overwhelmingly wanted a return to multi-party democracy.

The PNDC thus enacted the Committee of Experts (Constitution) Law, 1991, which tasked some prominent Ghanaians, including legal scholars, to “draw up and submit to the Council proposals for a draft Constitution of Ghana”. This Committee was to consider the report of the NCD in their deliberations leading to a draft Constitution for Ghana. All previous Constitutions were also to serve as a guide in the Committee’s work. On 31st July 1991, the Committee presented their proposals to the PNDC. The PNDC then established a Consultative Assembly, with the sole mandate of preparing a draft Constitution for Ghana. The composition of the Consultative Assembly varied greatly, and it operated like a National Assembly or Parliament. On 31st March 1992, the Consultative Assembly presented a draft Constitution to the PNDC. This draft Constitution was then submitted to a national referendum on 28th April 1992, where the people of Ghana overwhelmingly approved it to come into force on 7th January 1993. The PNDC enacted the Constitution of the Republic of Ghana (Promulgation) Law, 1992 (PNDCL 282), which ushered in the 1992 Fourth Republican Constitution as a Schedule to the aforementioned law i.e. PNDCL 282.

The objective of this Conference is to provide a platform for discussions relating to the 1992 Fourth Republican Constitution of Ghana, thirty years after its adoption by the people of Ghana. This is because, the 1992 Constitution has been Ghana’s longest lasting Constitution. Even though democratic rule under this current Constitution has not been a panacea to all our problems and challenges, it has nonetheless given us the most stable period in our political history.

7th January 2023 was exactly thirty (30) years since the coming into force of this Constitution, under which we have had eight (8) general elections, leading to the handing over of power from one democratically elected government to another on three (3) different occasions i.e. in 2001, 2009 and 2017.

There are therefore many who revere the Constitution as having kept the nation together from any military rule. In 2010, a Constitution Review Commission was established by the government of the day pursuant to the Constitution, to inter alia, articulate the concerns of the people of Ghana on amendments that may be required for a comprehensive review of the 1992 Constitution and make recommendations to the government for consideration and provide a draft Bill for possible amendment to the Constitution. In December 2011, the Constitution Review Commission presented its report to the government and a White paper on the report was issued on 15th June 2012. The government accepted most of the recommendations and decided to set up a five member Implementation Committee with the mandate to implement, in strict compliance with Chapter 25 of the Constitution, the recommendations accepted by the government.

Many of the recommendations had to do with aspects of the Constitution that have been found problematic by many scholars in recent times; for example the over-concentration of power in the hands of the President and the seeming monopoly over state resources by the political and ruling classes to the detriment of majority of the people. The fact that we have sought to review over thirty (30) provisions alone suggests that all may not be well with the Constitution after all. The Conference would thus provide an opportunity for all key stakeholders of our constitutional dispensation to meet in a collegial environment and share, debate and interrogate their ideas leading to concrete resolutions and proposals with regard to the future of the 1992 Constitution, thirty (30) years after its adoption.

PROFILE OF
KEYNOTE SPEAKER &
SPECIAL GUEST OF HONOUR

HIS EXCELLENCY

NANA ADDO DANKWA
AKUFO-ADDO

President of the Republic of Ghana

Born March 29, 1944, in Swalaba, Accra, Nana Addo Dankwa Akufo-Addo was raised in Accra, Ghana's capital. His father's residence in Accra was effectively the headquarters of the country's first political party, the United Gold Coast Convention (UGCC), after it was formed at Saltpond on August 4, 1947. Three of the Big Six (founding fathers of Ghana) were Nana's blood relatives: J.B Danquah (grand uncle), William Ofori Atta (uncle) and Edward Akufo-Addo, who became the third Chief Justice and later ceremonial President of the Republic from 1970-72, was his father.

Akufo-Addo had his primary education at the Government Boys School and later Rowe Road School both in Accra Central. Nana went on to England to study for his O- Level and A- Level examinations. He returned to Ghana in 1962 to teach at the Accra Academy before going to the University of Ghana in 1964 to read Economics. After graduating as an economist, he went on to read law in the UK and was called to the English Bar (Middle Temple) in July 1971 and the Ghana Bar in 1975.

He is married to Rebecca, daughter of the Speaker of the Parliament of the Third Republic of Ghana, the late Mr. Justice J.H Griffiths-Randolph. They have five children, with five grandchildren, and are both devout Church-going Christians.

LEGAL AND BUSINESS CAREER

Akufo-Addo stayed in France for five years as a lawyer at the now-defunct New York-based international law firm, Coudert Brothers. Apart from the welcome exposure to the dynamics of international corporate transactions, his stay in France also made him fluent in French.

In 1975, he returned home to Accra to continue with his legal career. He joined the chambers of U. V. Campbell from 1975 to 1979, and in 1979 co-founded the law firm Akufo-Addo, Prempeh & Co., which has become one of the prominent law firms in Ghana. Some Ghanaian lawyers who passed through his law firm are among the most outstanding lawyers at the Ghanaian bar today. They include Sophia Akuffo, Justice of the Supreme Court; Joyce Darko; Daniel Afari Yeboah; Philip Addison; Joe Ghartey, a former Attorney General and Minister for Justice; Alex Quaynor; Frank Davies; Kweku Paintsil; Ursula Owusu; Atta Akyea, Akufo-Addo's successor as MP for Abuakwa South constituency; Akoto Ampaw; Yoni Kulendi; Kwame Akuffo; Kwaku Asirifi; and Godfred Dame.

Like the "Doyen of Gold Coast politics", J. B. Danquah, and others before him, Akufo-Addo used his law practice to champion the cause of human rights, rule of law, justice, freedom, and democracy. He was well known for giving free legal assistance to the poor and fought for the rights and liberties of the Ghanaian people. Indeed, many of the important constitutional cases of the modern era, which, inter alia, protected the independence of the judiciary, the right of the citizen to demonstrate without police permit, and the right of equal access of all political parties to the State-owned media, were undertaken by him. He is regarded as one of the most brilliant advocates in the history of the Ghanaian Bar.

Akufo-Addo has served on the boards and committees of a number of political, legal, commercial, and social organizations in the country. He was the first Chairperson of DHL (GH) Ltd; Chairperson, Kinesec Communications (Co) Ltd, publishers of The Statesman; and the first Chairperson of the Ghana Committee on Human and Peoples' Rights. He was responsible, through his association with the US company, Millicom, for introducing mobile telephony into the country.

PROFILE OF
CHAIRPERSON - NATIONAL COMMISSION ON CIVIC EDUCATION

MS.

KATHLEEN ADDY

Chairperson, National Commission on Civic Education

Kathleen Addy is the Republic of Ghana's National Commission for Civic Education (NCCE) chairperson, appointed in 2022 by the president of the Republic from her Deputy Chair of the Commission role. Ms. Addy had been in charge of Finance and Administration since 2017. Kathleen is highly regarded as a civic activist with particular interest in women's empowerment as well as accountable and responsive governance, and has supported different civil society groups fighting for good governance and women's rights in Ghana.

She was once upon a time a Research and Communications Officer at the Center for Policy Analysis focusing on Women's Economic Empowerment and was the Afrobarometer Communications Manager at the Center for Democratic Development. Kathleen holds a first degree in Psychology and a Master's in Communications from the University of Ghana, Legon. She is also an alumna of Achimota School and Holy Child School. In her role as a Chairperson of the NCCE, Ms. Addy brings her expertise and vast experience in the development sector, as well as her passion and drive to bear on the work of the commission.

Gravitas was one of the ancient Roman virtues that denoted "seriousness." It is also translated variously as weight, dignity, and importance and connotes restraint and moral rigour. It also conveys a sense of responsibility and commitment to the task. Kathleen's got gravitas. Meanwhile civilitās, the feminine Latin word that speaks to politics and the art/practice of government, also connotes courteousness, politeness, dignity, civility, moderation, and restraint. Not only has Lady Kathy got all these, she has a passion to see every Ghanaian born of a woman possess these, and in abundance too, hence her passion for civic education.

PROFILE OF DIRECTOR - KONRAD ADENAUER STIFTUNG

Arne Wulff studied at the University of Kiel and received his doctorate with a thesis on Franz Schlegelberger, acting Reich Minister of Justice during the National Socialist era. This dissertation later became the subject of journalistic discussions.

Arne Wulff was the mayor of Kiel from 2003 to 2005. He was then appointed State Secretary in the Schleswig-Holstein Ministry of Finance. From 2009 to 2012 he headed the State Chancellery under Prime Minister Peter Harry Carstensen.

After leaving office with the change of government, he went to Kenya on March 1, 2014 for the Konrad Adenauer Foundation. He is presently the Director of the KAS Office in Ghana
